Tew-Mac quiet, condos up next

By SEAN DEVLIN

TEWKSBURY - There is now silence on the once bustling TEW-MAC Airport runway. For nearly four decades, families have gathered at the landmark to pass the dog days of summer munching ice cream cones and watching plane after plane thunder off into the sky. Last April, TEW-MAC's flight school and charter business closed in preparation for the demolition of the airport and the construction of a nine-hole golf course and an elderly housing complex.

Warren Hupper, whose family has owned the 55 acre airport since it opened in 1958, has recently sold the land to two private developers.

"The main reason I sold the airport is economics," said Hupper. "I just couldn't afford to keep it going anymore."

Cheaper airline rates and lack of interest in scenic airplane rides have been two contributing factors to the airport's financial slump.

Solemnly, Hupper admitted that he would've been happier if the airport had been bought by another enthusiast, but added, "It wasn't in the cards. As an alternative, the condominiums are probably the next best thing. It's going to benefit the community, and it's a nice concept."

Hupper, who began piloting planes at the age of 12, plans to continue with his passion for flying. Also, Hupper intends to retain his position as an FAA designated flight examiner, and possibly work out of the Lawrence Airport.

In addition to aviation-related work, Hupper hopes to expand his spring water business that is presently located alongside the airstrip.

Last Sunday, Sylvia Rainville, an airport employee, hosted a surprise farwell cookout for Hupper at her Dike Court home. Party-goers, some wearing T-shirts with an aerial view of the airport printed on them, ate all sorts of barbecued food and sipped ice-cold beer and soda under the sizzling sun.

"It was a complete surprise to me. I was just aware that Sylvia was going to have a cookout and I was coming over, but I had no idea that this would take place," said Hupper.

Rainville, who received her pilots license at TEW-MAC, reflected her last three years working for Hupper, "It's a one or two-man operation. I did everything from pumping gas to working the radio. Warren's a real good guy. We love him," she said.

Footbridge hit with vandalism

By FRANK AMATO

WILMINGTON - Vandals have again caused damage to the new foot bridge that spans the brook at Silver Lake. Police and Public Works officials have been concerned about damage to the bridge. Until recently, the damage has been confined to defacing the bridge, and youths carving their initials in it.

Last Wednesday, it was discovered the about 20 rungs in the railing were kicked out, with the damage apparently occurring during the night.

Bob Palmer, Public Works Superintendent is not shy about his concern over the recent damage. "We hope police find out who caused the damage, and have them repair it." Public Works employees built the bridge during slow periods during the winter. "People have been coming to the area to have their wedding pictures taken at the bridge, and women with baby carriages use it to cross from one side of the area to the other. It really fit into the area." Added Palmer."

Palmer said that he will wait about 2 weeks and if the police aren't successful in finding the people responsible, they will repair the bridge themselves.

Vandals strike again... This center section of the footbridge at Silver Lake was destroyed by vandals last Wednesday. The police and DPW officials hope to catch those responsible. (Photo by Frank Amato)

How do you arrange for a recycling bin?

By BOB CARROLL

WILMINGTON - If you are new resident and are looking for recycling bins, you can't do better than to visit the Town Manager's office and chat with Karen Armata.

One might think that the place to start would be the Board of Health or Conservation Commission. But no, those offices will most likely send you to the right place for bins, namely, the Town Manager's office. There, Armata graciously explains how the recycling bin business works in town.

First, said Armata, the number to call for bins was not printed on the recycling brochure, so here is the number: 617-938-5600.

Armata explained that you tell the recycling bin folks what street you live on, and they will deliver the correct color for your street. The bin color corresponds to weeks on the brochure schedule that the recycled materials are to be picked up, explained Armata.

Armata was also most helpful for any new resident, handing out a Wilmington map, explaining where the train stations are, and calling attention to such community functions as the Wilmington Job Resource Center where one can sharpen up on job hunting and computer skills as well as borrow money for a small, Wilmington-based business.

Even reporters new to town can get ideas for stories when chatting with such pleasant and informative town employees as Karen Armata.

For further information call the Town Managers office at 658-3311

Teddy bears invade Wilmington Public Library

WILMINGTON - On Wednesday, July 9, approximately 65 children and their parents marched through the library in celebration of Teddy Bears. Armed with bears of all sizes and hues, participants gathered in the Conference Room to hear an interactive version of Goldilocks and the Three Bears and to play games with a Teddy Bear theme. Kathy LeDuc, a collector of all kinds of bears, introduced the audience to Muffy Van der Bear and her faithful pal, Hoppy Hare. As a parting favor, each child received a bear designed by Library Pages Chantal Auger and Elizabeth Berlik. Many thanks to Arlene Ten Dyke for donating Mama and Papa bear.

It's YOUR Money

DIVORCE AND THE RETIREMENT PLAN

Pensions and retirement plan assets often represent the largest chunk of a couple's net worth, so it's not surprising that they loom large in divorce negotiations. When there's not much else to divvy up, financial wrangling leading to the divorce decree will center on these assets. It's important to follow the rules to avoid tax foul-ups. Plan assets must be distributed following a Qualified Domestic Relations Order. The IRS has issued model language for these orders. A husband, terminated from his job, took a lump-sum payout from his retirement plan before the divorce decree was entered. He was fully taxed on the payout, even though he promptly gave half to his ex-wife as the decree required. Remember pension assets. When a husband remarried, the new wife got part of the pension and all the survivor benefits when he retired; the ex-wife lost out. When life charges mean financial changes, too, get good advice from the money - and- tax people at

Strategic plan complete

by Christine L. McGrath, Ph.D

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Public Schools have recently published the 1996-97 year end report on the five year strategic plan. This report marks the completion of the fifth year activities of our Five Year Strategic Plan. The plan was organized around three major areas: Curriculum and Instruction, Community Involvement and School Organization. Many of the goals on the five year plan have been met. Other goals will be expanded and carried over to the new five year plan. I am pleased to highlight some of the school district accomplishments outlined in the year end report.

Curriculum and Instruction - We have aligned the Tewksbury Public Schools curriculum with the Curriculum Frameworks adopted by the Massachusetts Department of Education. The writing program at all levels has been expanded and a new writing curriculum has been adopted. Student test score performance in writing has greatly improved as a result of this work.

We continue to secure grant funds and corporate donations to provide programs for gifted and talented students. We have initiated a Future Problem Solvers Program at all elementary schools and continued the Future Scientists of America Program at the Middle School. A dual enrollment program was established between Tewksbury Memorial High School and the University of Massachusetts at Lowell to provide able high school students with college level courses.

Technology has been a major focus of the 1996-97 school year. The Tewksbury Public Schools Technology Plan was approved by the Mass. Dept. of Education and given a high rating. This approval resulted in a $118,000 Technology Grant for the networking of all school libraries and the entire high school.

An Alternative Learning Center was established at the John W. Wynn Middle School. This Center met the needs of those students whose behavior was disruptive in the classroom. The Center also appreciably reduced the number of students placed on out of school suspension.

Community Involvement - The Tewksbury School Committee provided the financial support and encouragement to greatly expand our Extended Day Program. An Extended Day Director was hired. A Before School Program was established at all four elementary schools in January of 1997. This program complimented the previously established After School Program. The Extended Day Vacation Program also expanded to include a full day summer program and programs for all school vacation periods.

The district continued its commitment to parent training with a fall and a spring parent training series. The fall program included sessions on Building Self-Esteem, Homework Support and Home School Communication. The spring series featured presentations from Families First at Wheelock College. The spring topics included Children and Stress, Violence and Children and How to Curtail Children's TV Watching.

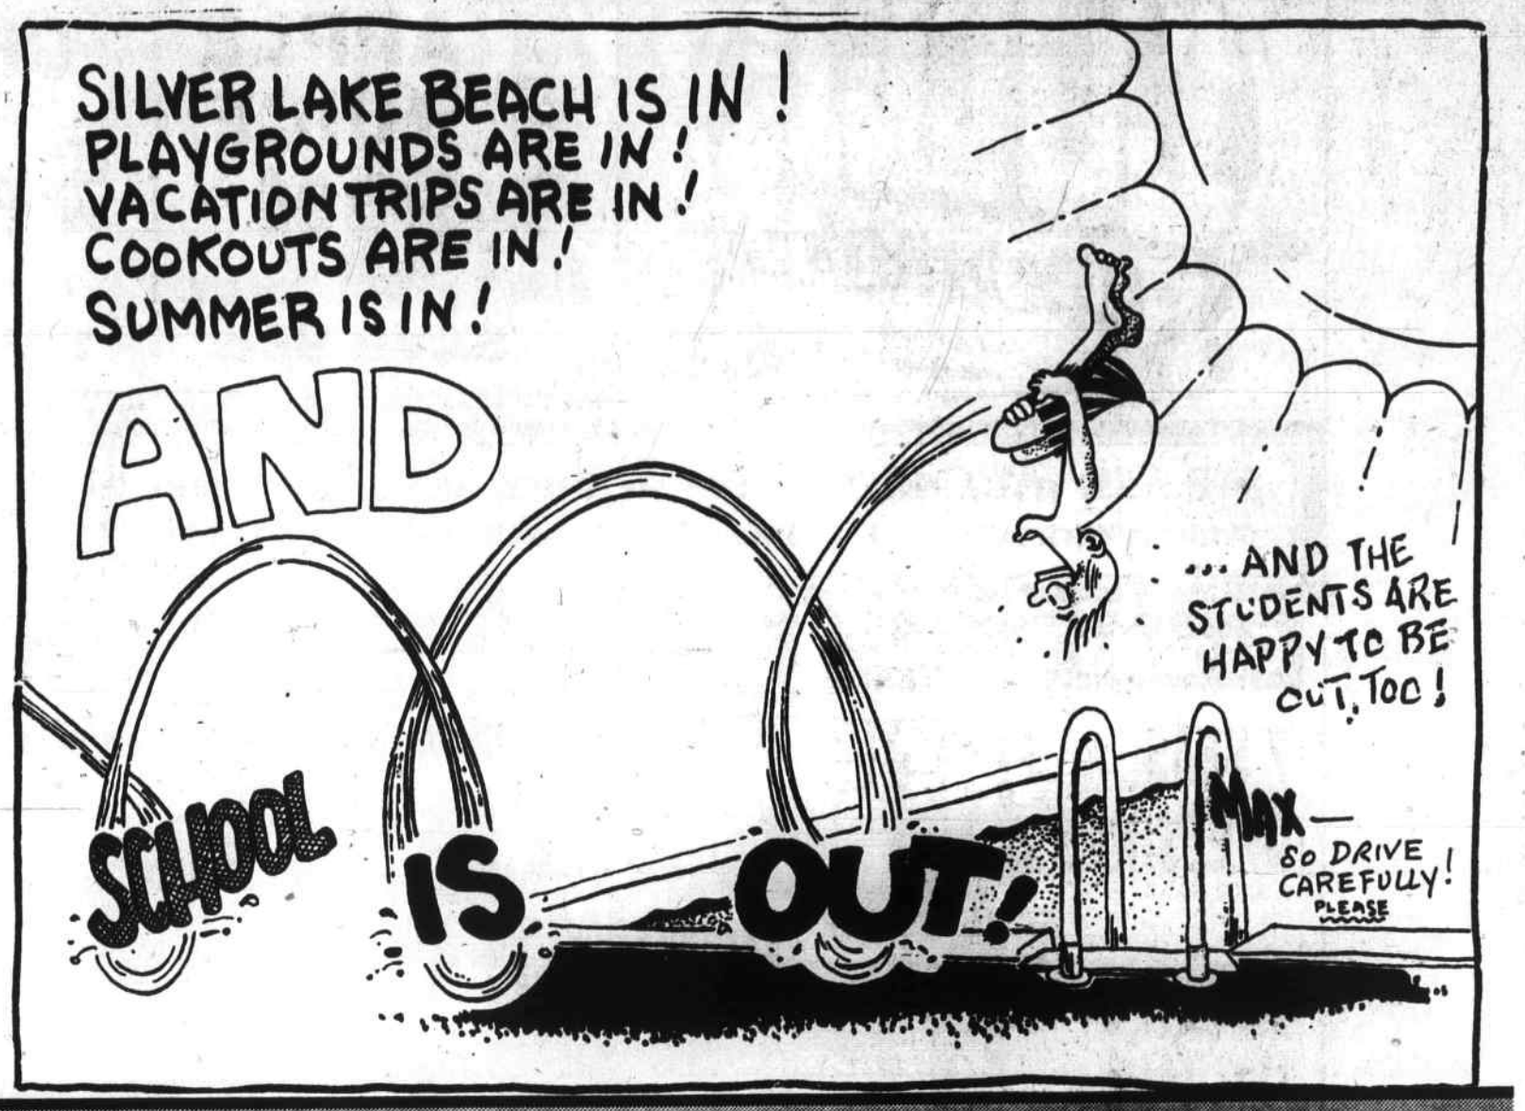
School Organization - The key activity in this area was the development of a plan for school space. A New School Building Committee was formed and the administration will continue to work closely with this Committee to develop the plans for the new elementary school.

The faculty and administration at Tewksbury Memorial High School devised a new block schedule for the school. This schedule was field tested during the spring of 1997 and will be implemented in September of 1997. Finally, we continued our commitment to the supervision and evaluation of teaching and administrative personnel through the second year evaluation of our new teacher evaluation tool and the piloting of a new administrative evaluation tool.

We have accomplished many goals and realized many successes. We look forward to meeting the challenges of the new strategic plan and continuing to provide a high quality education for our students.

Copies of the Year End Report are available in the Office of the Superintendent of Schools at 139 Pleasant St., telephone 851-7347.

Thank you for your support.



Letters to the editor

Camp forty acres needs help

Dear Larz:

We are writing to solicit support and assistance for the next major project at the Wilmington Junior camps, commonly known as Camp Forty Acres. The National Guard stationed at Camp Curtis Guild in Reading has offered to the Board of Directors of the Camp an opportunity to help with major renovations. They provide non-profit organizations such as ours labor and heavy equipment. We need help in the following ways: (no matter how small, any support given will be greatly appreciated).

The Guard will need gravel to resurface the entrance road which is in desperate need of repair.

The Guard will be constructing a brand new athletic field. Approximately 20 x 40 yards of sod will be needed.

The Guard will be expanding the parking lot.

In return for their efforts, they ask that we provide them meals and refreshments (three meals a day for 10 days starting July 28, 1997.

Those who can provide assistance are urged to call Rick Barry at 508-694-1027 or 658-8187.

Very truly yours,
Richard Barry, President
Wilmington Junior Camps

P.S. Wilmington Junior Camps, Inc. was established in 1948 to create a place for youth groups in Wilmington and surrounding communities. It is a non-profit organization relying entirely on volunteers and private donations to keep the camp operating. The camp provides youths of churches, schools and scouting troops with a pristine, wilderness setting for recreation and education.

July 17 Ami Day

Dear Larz:

This is a request to declare July 17 as Brandi "Amy" Jean Sullivan Day -in her memory.

We, the family and friends of Amy Sullivan would like to request that the people of Tewksbury and surrounding towns display a purple ribbon somewhere on their property on car antenna on July 17 in memory of Amy who was last seen alive on this day with Neil Cluff and Alex Rynd (her boyfriend).

We would also like everyone to keep their purple ribbons on display until Amy's killer(s) are found and justice has been served.

We, her family and friends want to thank you all very much for caring and for helping us.

Please, if anyone has any information that can lead to the apprehension of her killer, call Detective Dennis Peterson (508-640-4380), of the Tewksbury Police Department or State Police Trooper Owen Boyle at 617-494-4055.

Thank you,
Amy's family

Historic Foster school

Dear Larz:

Tewksbury Historic Commission members reacted with considerable distress on several counts when we learned from a local newspaper that the Foster School was targeted for demolition. We were first and primarily alarmed by the potential loss of this important town landmark. We were also concerned about the town undertaking this drastic step without involving the Commission.

I recently toured the school with John Ryan and Beverly Bennett. The newspaper article led me to expect far worse damage and deterioration than we actually saw. We are not engineers, but the building certainly seemed solid and sound. Such damage as was visible seemed repairable.I was, however, impressed that the woodwork, floors, tin ceilings and other historic architectural features were almost completely intact. A student from the 1890's would feel very much at home.

We are unable to accept the conclusion that this building is ready for the wrecking ball. I believe, instead, that it is now incumbent on The Historic Commission, the Board of Selectmen, and all other Tewksbury organizations and citizens to explore every realistic possibility for preserving this splendid building and putting it to some productive use which is consistent with historic preservation goals. I believe that the actions we take, or fail to take, will say a lot about the character of the town.

Our immediate plan is to make the Foster School the priority agenda item for the Historic Commission meeting on Thursday, July 17, 1997. The Commission will commence its meeting at the Ella Fleming School at 7 p.m. Once the meeting is called to order, we will adjourn to the Foster School for an inspection tour. Your colleague, Mr. Ryan, from the School Department has been kind enough to arrange for opening the building. We invite and encourage the Board of Selectmen and Town Manager's office to attend.

I hope that this tour can be followed in the near future by some joint discussion directed toward setting up the best possible mechanism for getting to work on saving this historic treasure.

Very truly ours,
James J. Gaffney, III Chairman,
Tewksbury Historic Commission

Cemetery rules ignored?

Dear Larz:

I read the article in the Town Crier and was somewhat displeased over the remarks on the appearance of the Tewksbury Cemetery. Mr. Patterson and I have had a discussion about the cemetery, back in May of 1997, and prior months before that, it was with my mother in 1996, which was a waste of time.

The concern is over the appearance of some of the burial sites. I agree that some of the burial sites are to overly decorated and does look trashy. But, on the other hand, it also takes away from having to look at over grown weeds and barren brown spots where there is nothing but rotten weeds and rotten grass. So I ask, "what is worse?" Mr. Patterson's excuse to me was, "There is a problem with grubs." I'm sorry, but that sir, is a cop out. There are other cemeteries around and look very peaceful. Why not Tewksbury Cemetery Corporation?

I for one, (and I have seen others) have come from new Hampshire to do the care of my father's site and plant the grass (to no avail), pull the weeds from our site and several sites around, to make it look presentable.I have had to remove tattered American Flags (more than one) that were on my father's site. Trash and weeds from the fall of 1996 were still there in May of 1997, where I had left them for pickup before snowfall. Mr.Patterson's response to me was, "We only have two people to do all this work. We can only do so much." Well, sir, from what I can see, the only time it really gets a good make over is when a holiday is coming up. Is this what perpetual care is called?

I do not believe anyone is ignoring the rules. The fact is that the cemetery is not complying with its own rules. Examples: Rule #11, flowers placed on graves following a funeral will be removed as soon as the flowers become unsightly. Rule #12, baskets,wreaths or other decorations placed on the lot in late fall will be removed when work is resumed in the cemetery in the spring, usually after March 1.

How about this one, Rule #10, flowers placed on lots for Memorial Day will be allowed to remain until they become unsightly or for a period of about two weeks when they will be removed to prevent killing the grass and also to allow proper care of the lot. What grass? What care?

My personal note to this Mr. Patterson is, if the help cannot keep up with your program, why not hire some high school students for the summer months, to assist in the over burden of care. If you showed attention to your program, enforced your own rules and gave us what we have paid for (proper perpetual care), maybe these problems would not exist. Also, telling me (and whom ever else) that you have a grub problem, and nothing can be done about it, is beyond my comprehension. My father was buried in 1995. There are some others who go back even further than that.

Update: I just returned from the cemetery (July 10, 1997) and again what I saw was weeds flourishing after a good rain, no grass on my father's site. I had to pluck weeds again, saw turned over an dead plants. Over grown grass and weeds on and about the stones. Tell me, Mr. Patterson, who are you trying to impress by printing the article in the paper and making all of us (deed owners) look like the culprits, when you are just as much at fault for not implementing your own rules. I'm sorry, but if other cemeteries can have a peaceful and serene atmosphere, where one can leave a loved one, knowing they are being cared for. "Why not Tewksbury Cemetery?"

We have three generations in that cemetery and more to come when it's time. I cannot say I feel comfortable. My father just might be turning over in his grave over this one.

Genny Eustace

Letters to the editor

Searching for "depression era" youth

Dear Larz:

As a child, I never tired of listening to my grandparents tell me about their lives as children. Now, as a U.S. History major at Boston College, I have decided to channel this interest into a formal research project. For my senior thesis, I will study the lives of children who lived during the Great Depression. Because my grandparents are no longer nearby, I hope to make contact with those in the Massachusetts area who lived during this time. I believe that listening to first hand accounts of Depression-era childhood is the only way to truly study this topic.

If you grew up during the Great Depression, my appeal is directed to you. Please write me and tell me about your childhood - your letter may cover any topic and be of any length. I am interested in hearing about your experiences, and I would be most grateful to receive any accounts that would help me understand what the Depression looked through the eyes of a child. Please sent your letters to: Jennifer Pish, Boston College, Vanderslice Hall, Rm. 317, P.O. Box 9105, Chestnut Hill, MA 01267-9105. I appreciate your time, and look forward to hearing your history.

Sincerely,
Jennifer M. Pish

Small world ? – Small town!

Dear Larz:

I was pleasantly surprised, this morning, at the local Gibbs gas station, when Frank Amato, who used to work there (he was the manager), came over to me, while I was fueling up and told me that he was now with the Town Crier.

I said to him, "This is like going from the ridiculous, to the sublime" (no offense intended).

Small world?

Yours,
Harold W. Foley

Tewksbury golden age

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Golden Age Club had its annual cookout last week. As usual the Senior Center was bursting at the seams. As we were finishing our desert the craft room was hustling and bustling with students from Tammy's Dance Connection of Tewksbury putting on their costumes for their performance.

As usual Tammy came through with a show much to the delight of all the seniors. All the boys and girls were great just what we needed to top off our day. Thank you, Tammy and all your wonderful students, it's always a delight to have them perform for us.

Several door prizes were awarded. The building fund raiser chances were also drawn. The first prize, a colored television was won by Ernie and Pat Lorenz; second prize, $75 was won by Doris McPhail and the final prize, $50 was won by Marie Durgan. Congratulations everyone. Thank you to everyone who bought and sold chances for this worthy cause.

Then came the after cookout cleaning work. I wish to thank my entertainment committee and everyone else who helped from early morning to closing. Without all that help, none of this could take place. Thanks again.

The next regular meeting will be held August 12 with bingo following.

Trips to the Summit in Vermont is now full. Final payment for the September 2-4 sojourn is due no late than August 2. Final payment for the September 8-10 trip is due August 8.

Gary Khoury likes helping others through karate

By BOB CARROLL

Tewksbury - Karate teacher and founder of Khoury's Karate Academy Gary Khoury was an unlikely candidate to become a black belt.

Khoury, now 30 years old, said that as a youth, he discovered he was not very good at team sports. He was always the last to be picked, and then would observe that when he did play any team sport, the other kids were simply better at it.

Khoury takes exception to the idea that team sports can help any youngster build character and confidence. For Khoury, team sports only helped him lose confidence, and led to his being shy.

Khoury said his mother, realizing team sports were not his strong point, suggested Khoury take up the martial arts. Khoury said he was already a great fan of Saturday afternoon martial arts shows featuring people such as Chuck Norris. Khoury said he followed his mother's suggestion, and as an eighth grader began studying Kempo Karate at a small dojo (martial arts practice session and place of practice) in Salem run by Sensei Ted Heffernan. (The sensei is the master teacher.).

Khoury's mother's perceptions proved right, because Khoury was able to proceed in the Karate at his own pace. Gradually, from, the study of Karate, said Khoury, he developed strength and balance -- and along with that came enough confidence to again tackle team sports. Khoury observed that by his junior year in high school, he had become captain of his track team, and was a football quarterback. Khoury also became president of his class.

Khoury proceeded to study the Uechi Ryu form of Karate (pronounced Weychee Roo) in Okinawa for five years, earning his fourth degree black belt.

Uechi Ryu is a very classical style of self defense. According to some of its practitioners, the style emphasizes close-in fighting in small quarters, and it relies more on conservative, straight-to-the-point punches and kicks than on showy, high flying or turn-around kicks that may look great but that don't necessarily ad to one's ability to neutralize an opponent.

Khoury studied under Mr. Uechi, the grandson of the founder of Uechi Ryu, Dan Bun Uechi, and has won numerous competitions.

Khoury spoke with great respect about one of his Japanese teachers who, though much smaller than Khoury, could push Khoury across the dojo at will.

Khoury said that defined simply, Karate is a physical discipline, a form of "empty handed" (no weapons) self defense that emphasizes punches and kicks. (Other martial-arts disciplines emphasize twisting and turning limbs, or emphasize throwing an opponent.)

Anyone, said Khoury, can learn the punches and kicks. However, Khoury said it takes a bit more dedication for any child or adult to learn what he is teaching, namely, "Karate Do." Karate Do means the way of Karate, which includes mental discipline, philosophy , and self control.

Khoury said his teacher Mr. Nakahodo warned Khoury not to engage in a street fight -- ever. Nakahodo told Khoury that when you fight, it hurts everybody all the way back to the dojo. It hurts your opponent, and can hurt you too. (For example, it can shame you as well as your teacher.) The point was, never do violence to others, said Khoury.

Khoury explained that Karate was originally a way for the weak to overcome the strong. Today, said Khoury, Karate is a way for one to overcome oneself.

Khoury told how a group of children gained some self confidence during a beautiful exchange in a dojo. Normally, the classes for youngsters are about half boys, half girls. At this one class, or dojo, taught by Khoury, it so happened that there was only one girl and five or six boys.

After awhile, Khoury noticed that the young girl seemed distracted. He asked her what was wrong, and she observed that she was the only girl in the class. While Khoury was pondering what he might say in reply, one of the boys observed that he was the only person in the class wearing glasses. Quickly, the other boys picked up the theme. One boy said he was the only one with blond hair. Another boy said he was the shortest.

Khoury said that eight and nine year old kids are much more perceptive than society gives them credit for being, and in the right settin, will build on that. Khoury said the class discussed how each student might be different from another, and talked about how being different was OK.

The kids dealt with diversity and lent each other and the girl a kindly helping hand.

Khoury relayed the experience of one of his relatively new adult students, Dennis Melton, 40, of Salem, New Hampshire. Melton is an aerospace engineer at Raytheon in Tewksbury. One of the skills Melton said he wanted to practice through Karate was self control during any confrontation.

Recently, Melton was involved in a traffic mishap. Melton was not sure exactly what happened, but, a man exited his vehicle and came up to Melton's car and started saying a lot of provocative things.

Melton said that before studying Karate, he would have gotten out of his car and dealt with the other person head-on. However, Melton's young son was with him, and Melton hoped to show the youngster a preferable way to deal with conflict.

Melton said the fellow, who seemed to have something in his back pocket, appeared more than ready to fight and would not stop saying things at the window of the car. Melton said for the most part he replied in a calm manner and, despite his rising emotions, managed to keep himself from climbing out of the car.

The light changed, and Melton drove away from the angry fellow who was still at his window.

Melton credited his study of Uechi Ryu with helping him control his temper despite a most trying verbal assault.

Khoury observed that he likes being able to apply his Karate to helping other people develop self confidence, enhance self control and build a positive attitude toward life. So when someone asks him if he ever uses his Karate, Khoury smiles and says, "Every day!"

Tewksbury Hospital

Detoxifaction unit marks 25th year

By CHARLOTTE COOPER AND FRANK AMATO

TEWKSBURY - "We've been in the business for about 25 years," says Peter Iannotti Jr., Administrative Director of the Community Health Detoxification Unit at Tewksbury Hospital. "You don't realize how great a need there is out there for this service," he adds. He's talking about yet another facet of the varied services offered on the Hospital's campus: the Substance Abuse Detoxification Program. This program also provides outreach services, part of which are located in Lowell, that include driver alcohol education programs, first offender programs, second offender programs, and an after care program.

"Previous to 1993 we were part of Lowell General Hospital and we had our detoxification on the grounds of LGH. In 1993 we merged together with the Lowell Community Health Center in an effort to be able to provide a continuim of care for the population we served. The LCHC is indirectly owned by LGH, so we do have a tie with LGH in that way," Iannotti says. If they were to stay at LGH, a substantial amount of money would be needed to rehab that facility. The Commissioner of Public Health suggested they move to the Tewksbury Hospital campus, and they made the move in October of 1995. "It's been a good move for us in that the facilities here are 300% better than the facilities at LGH," Iannotti says.

"There are numerous ways you can be referred to the unit here; self referral, court referral, referral from an outside agency or even a referral from on the campus itself, whether it be Nichols or Glenice Sheehan, or a patient that is already in the hospital here," says Andrea Silva, Acting Nurse Manager of the detoxification unit. The client is screened over the phone and pertinent information is taken of their state of health, both medically and psychiatrically, and about their substance abuse. "We like to get a feel for where they are at: will our unit be the appropriate place for them. Sometimes we find that the reason a patient is abusing drugs is really because of a psychiatric problem, and they may need to go to another facility," she says.

The detoxification unit, whose clients are mostly alcohol, heroin, and cocaine abusers or a combination abuse of those substances, is licensed for and holds 32 beds. "We provide 24 hours of nursing care for our clients," says Silva. They have 35 staff members on the floor with 10-12 more available on short notice, if needed.

For the people who work in the unit, a typical day consists of ongoing admissions (both night and day), discharges, monitoring people for withdrawal symptoms, and distributing and administering medications. On each shift there are at least 2 nurses with 2 or 3 attendants, and four counselors are present from 7am to 8pm who can be reached after hours by phone. "Frequently we'll get a call from a halfway house late in the afternoon that they have a bed, and they'd like a particular person to go there. That patient then has to be transported [that day]," Silva says.

When patients are admitted, they are given an admissions package that contains a copy of the house rules, a program schedule, their group assignment and where they need to be. "The attendant will take the patient around and show them the facility and explain the rules. For the first few days they are monitored for withdrawal symptoms. Some people are more ill than others. After a few days we reevaluate them and assign them to a level," Silva says. "Level A is acute, which means that when they come in, they are acutely ill, are in bed, and require medication. There are obvious withdrawal symptoms requiring medication, such as sweating and pain. Heroin is probably the worst [substance] to withdraw from. Alcohol is right up there, too, depending on age, amount of alcohol consumed, and the length of time alcohol was being abused. When they are through that initial acute phase, they are moved up to level B: they are given their clothes and reminded that they are expected to actively participate in the program. This means they go to groups, have a counselor assigned to them, and their discharge plan has been started. They are going from less intense medication to more counseling and education. Level C is basically a transition phase. These are people that are waiting for placement into another program. Usually it happens to people who are homeless or who have an unsafe environment to go home to: they cannot go back to where they came from," Silva says.

"We also have an alumni meeting on Friday nights for graduates of our program over at Lowell General that they can attend if they want to. It's run by a counselor from the unit. We have AA [Alcoholics Anonymous] or NA [Narcotics Anonymous] that come in every night, seven nights per week between 7:30 and 8:30; only the detoxification and campus patients through their case manager or charge nurse are allowed in the groups to maintain confidentiality. Rape crisis comes in once a week and they do a program. Since they've been here, they've done one group for men and one for women; the men's group got a better response than the women's. Some of the men need rape crisis counseling. We do confidential HIV testing once a week along with pre- and post-counseling and HIV education twice a week. A lot of people who come in are HIV positive or have full-blown aids and we work with them to make sure they have a doctor, insurance, and are on medication. Our HIV coordinator that we have on the unit helps to make those arrangements. Pregnant women are hooked up with WIC (Women and Infant Children) which allows them to receive a stipend for basic staples like milk and eggs," Silva says.

"We are running at 100% capacity. Most of the time there is a waiting list. It's usually about a 2-5 day wait. The longest was two weeks. The average stay is 5-10 days with referrals to whatever their discharge destination might be, whether it be outpatient counseling or self programs which is a structured outpatient, residential or halfway houses or some other long term placement. We take a lot of referrals to Nichols, Hart House, Glenice Sheehan, and other halfway houses," Silva says. They will accept clients of any age that meet the proper criteria but usually the ages are between 17 and 65. The ratio of men to women in the unit is usually 1:1 but if that changes, the beds are moved to accommodate the situation. "Generally, it's a voluntary admission here. Section 35, the court referrals, is the only involuntary admission that we will take, and they come accompanied by the sheriff with papers that the court signed. The length of stay [for involuntary admissions] is usually for a period not to exceed 30 days," she says.

"Most of our folks either have Mass Health or no insurance at all. It's rare for us to have a privately insured patient," Iannotti says. "We cater to a large population of uninsured and indigents, and we do accept insurance's. It's more commonplace for them to have no insurance," Silva says. The focus at the detoxification center is one of counseling, education, and relapse prevention. The unit currently has many repeat substance abusers but the numbers are decreasing. "I think you'll find that within the next five years, there will be more programs in education and prevention, with more money available for them in hopes of reducing the number of people who abuse substances," Iannotti says.

IS OWNER FINANCING A GOOD IDEA?

If you are selling a house in which you have a lot of equity, and you don't need that equity to buy a new home, an owner-financing agreement may benefit you and your buyers.

Seller-financing arrangements usually involve the buyers securing the largest portion of their purchase money from a mortgage company and getting a smaller second loan from the sellers. For example, they may finance 75% from a lender, put in 15% from savings, and ask the sellers to finance the remaining 10%. The terms and interest rates on seller carrybacks are negotiated on a case-by-case basis. Sellers should ensure that the note protects them to the fullest. They may be able to negotiate a note that provides a better return on their money than 1-to-5 year CD's or treasury notes. Use common sense when considering such a loan, and verify the buyers' income, credit history, and job stability before making your final decision.

Food poisoning

We have been notified by the Department of Elder Affairs in Boston of the alarming number of senior citizens becoming ill with food poisoning. Food poisoning is much more of a serious medical problem than the older people will want to admit. It is a preventable medical problem. If we all take precautions when cooking and handling foods, especially when cooking on a grill outside or eating food outside, some of the problem can be eliminated.

Food becomes contaminated easily in an outside environment. Foods such as sandwiches made with mayonnaise, ham, chicken or roast beef, if not cooked thoroughly, spoil easily. It is important to cook all meats well. Partially cooked meat can generate bacteria contaminating food very quickly. Meats that had been frozen and not quite thawed out, they can be very hazardous, if cooked in that condition. It is also dangerous to pre-cook foods for a group gathering and then return to the grill to continue the cooking. Bacteria will set in quickly causing food poisoning. Be careful, especially during the summer months, when many cookouts are being enjoyed.

Always be aware of the fact, that food poisoning can be a critical medical problem if not treated quickly. Another way food can become contaminated is by not wearing plastic gloves when preparing, cooking and serving meats. Always wear plastic gloves and wash your hands after handling uncooked meat. The summer months go by so fast, be careful and enjoy the outside, before it is replaced by another long, cold winter.

Daily meal

We are very happy with the number of seniors going to the school for a daily meal. From what I hear, from them, the meals are very good. District playoffs

Home run ousts local All-Stars

by Steve Repsys

The Wilmington Major League All-Star Baseball team battled valiantly to stay alive in the District 13 playoffs. However, it was the North Reading Hornets who ended the tremendous efforts by this club by eliminating them from tournament play thanks to a two-run homer in extra innings on Friday night.

With the score nodded at four with two outs and one runner on base in the bottom of the eighth inning, North Reading's Brian Lewis instantly became a hero. The seventh batter in their order connected on a 2-2 pitch and he sent the ball over the center field fence at Rotary Park to not only crush the Cats, but that ended the game and the tournament run for the Cats.

In any case, this team really showed its true colors with many comebacks and exciting plays in its three games of play.

"I'm proud of these kids," said head coach Bill Wallace. "Somebody had to lose. I would of loved to play next week, but we had a tough day and it wasn't meant to be."

Not only was the home run a big factor in the loss, but the Cats left eleven players on base and they struck out 16 times throughout the game. Not getting the timely hit or at least contact, hurt the team just as much as the homerun did.

"[Leaving the eleven runners on] was a big factor," said Wallace. "We had our chance to break the game open and that's what happened last game. Both teams played hard. [North Reading] had more timely hitting, but we did not give up. We kept scrapping for runs."

North Reading struck for two runs in the bottom of the first inning to open the gate. Howie Redman lead-off the game with a single to left off pitcher Craig Osgood. After a sacrifice bunt, Frank Powers scored Redman when he reached on a throwing error. An rbi single followed and Wilmington was down 2-0 after the first inning.

With their never say die attitude, Wilmington was able to chop the deficit in half in the top of the second Billy Sinopoli walked and advanced two bases on two separate wild pitches. Joe Cavanaugh brought in Sinopoli from third with a sharp single to left to put the Cats on the scoreboard.

But the Hornets quickly stung again. In their next at-bat, Lewis started a rally with a double to center. He went to third on a groundout, before scoring on a single to right center by Chris Cody to make it 3-1.

Again in the third, Wilmington was able to inch closer. Sinopoli's mammoth blast over the left-center fence closed the gap to 3-2.

Facing elimination in the top of the sixth, Wilmington did not want to go down without a fight. The rally started with Sean Layton's perfectly executed bunt on which he beat out the throw

Eliminate Stonham

Senior All-Stars advance in playoffs

by JAMIE POTE

With just one other team in its district, the Wilmington Senior League All-Star baseball team quickly advanced in further play of tournament action with a 2-0 best-out-of-three victory over Stoneham.

Wilmington will now play the winner of District 8 which is believed to be either Braintree or Stoughton at their place on Monday night.

Wilmington win the first game of the series at Stoneham on Sunday night, 7-6. They concluded the series with a 8-1 win on Tuesday night behind the strong pitching of Brian Binkowski.

Assistant coach Bobby Surran said he is happy with what he is witnessing.

"The defense has been excellent," said Surran. "We did make some base running mistakes in both games, but I'm really happy with the way they are playing, especially defensive wise."

Binkowski went the distance on Tuesday night as the game was called after six innings due to darkness. The right-handed fireballer gave up one unearned run on two hits, while walking three and striking out six.

"Brain pitched really well. He had some control problems early on, but he got over that and pitched great," Surran said.

This team is very deep in pitching between Binkowski, Pat and Mike Heffernan as well as catcher Tom Southmayd to start. And speaking of Southmayd, Surran said the catcher played terrific behind the mask on Tuesday.

As for the bats, Derek Mazza was the lone batter to have two hits, while, Eric Banda and Marty Tildsley also had big singles as well. Scott Buck played well at the hot corner making three nice plays, while, Rob Perkins showed off his strong arm in left field.

In the first game, southpaw Pat Heffernan went the distance giving up six hits on three walks and two hitsbatsmen, while striking out three. He also gave himself a big hand with a big two-run homer in the fifth to help the Cats who were trailing 6-3 at the time. However, the big bat belonged to Banda who not only had a big triple, but he scored the tying and winning run run, while also playing very well with the glove at first base.

Derek Mazza had two hits, while, Bob French, Scott Aldrich, Jim Fennelly and Matt Jones also all contributed in the win.

Major league All-Stars

Injury sidelines star pitcher

by Jamie Pote
and Steve Repsys

In any level of baseball, pitching is the name of the game. And when a team has a dominating pitcher, it obviously has better chances of being successful than a team who doesn't have a flame-thrower.

For the Wilmington 12-year old baseball team who were eliminated from further tournament play on Friday night with an exciting 8-6 loss to North Reading in extra innings, they had a dominating pitcher, they just couldn't use him.

Dave Rappoli, a 12-year old right handed strike out artist, hasn't been able to throw his 60 mile per hour fastball since the middle of the season on the Yankees squad. While striking out nearly every batter he faced during the season, Dave continued to get some pain in the back of his throwing shoulder. He had it checked by a doctor, and his conditioned was termed "little league shoulder," which is having a growth plate in their shoulder due to either throwing to hard or just common problems with growing into a teenager.

"It hurt the team a bit since he couldn't play shortstop or pitch," said his father Jim, who also was the team's assistant coach under Yankees coach Bill Wallace. "This is Dave's second year in the All-Stars. He was an outstanding pitcher last year. We put him at second [base] and first [base] and then the outfield to try to make him a better hitter [and to relieve him from throwing duties]."

Dave and his father are not sure how long Dave will be out from pitching. Apparently, in Dave's shoulder, he has a growth plate in which he has a separation which causes serious pain whenever he throws the ball, whether it be fastball, curveball or soft toss. But, it should heal fine according to the doctor.

"I hope to be pitching again by August in the Summer [12-13] League," said Dave.

It was obvious that not being able to pitch hurt Dave in more than one way.

"I like to pitch the most because you're always moving," Dave said. "You're always in the action as a pitcher and I enjoy striking people out. It's frustrating not being able to pitch, but I helped out a lot by playing second and doing lots of double plays."

Wallace, his head coach for three regular seasons and two all-star teams, thinks very highly of Dave's abilities.

"Dave is a talented kid," Wallace said. "Dave was in top form as a pitcher last year. He would have been a big help pitching for us again, but he's been a big help to us by playing second [base] and center [field]. With his injury he would get frustrated easily, and I would just try to get him to relax."

Dave comes from a tradition of great ball players throughout his family. Between his father, his uncle Rich Rappoli and his cousins Paul and Ryan, all of them have two things in common: they all can or have played the game of baseball showing off a lot of talent, but most importantly, they all have done it with class and for the love of the game.

Dave is no different.

Wiffleball tourney

by JAMIE POTE

The fifth annual Knights of Columbus Wiffleball Tournament will once again take place and this year's fun filled extravaganza will be Saturday, July 26th in the parking lot of the K of C in Wilmington.

Team Bud will be looking to conquer its fourth championship in the five year's of existence (and the year they didn't win it, they didn't enter the tournament). However, rumor has it, Team Bud (consisting of: Tom Gracia, Brian Savosik, Dan Woods and Sean Keogan) has broken up, and if that is the case perhaps a new champion will be doing some bragging.

The usual same rules will once again apply as the infamous wheelbarrow will be used for a strikezone with the lines and the fence on the fields to determine hits and outs. First place prize will once again be $200 and entree fee is $60 per team. Last year, $1700 was raised and $200 of that was donated back to the K of C for its new ceiling.

Teams must have at least four players on the team, but they can have more than four.

If anyone one is interested in putting in a team, they must call Gerry O'Reilly at the K of C between 7-11 p.m., Monday thru Thursday. It is very important to sign-up as quickly as possible as the tournament can only hold so many teams.

HIGH COST OF AUTO INJURIES
QUESTION: How do the medical costs of auto injuries compare to medical costs for serious diseases?
ANSWER: It's no consolation to know that auto injury costs have hit a new high nationally of over $20 billion a year. These medical costs are even higher, in fact, than the total costs involved in either heart disease or stroke. Only cancer costs loomed higher in a study by the Insurance Information Institute.
The number of motor vehicle crash injuries, are estimated at over 4 million per year, most often involving people under 35 years of age. The cost of injuries alone exceed the cost of heart disease and stroke by more than two to one.

MEDICAL COSTS for auto injuries are double those for heart disease and stroke combined.

Senior softball

All-Stars open with victory

The Wilmington Senior Little League Softball team opened its tournament season with a convincing 13-3 win over Wakefield on Saturday.

The team was led offensively by Jackie Rubino who had a single, double, walk and four rbis.

Other offensive stars included Michelle McGonagle with two hits and three runs scored, Katie May Holloway and Christina Downs each had two hits and two runs scored, while Katelyn Sughrue had a hit and two runs scored. Kristin Thomas, Erika Persson, Sara Collings also added important hits to the Wilmington barrage.

Robin Mainini pitched the complete game, picking up the win allowing only three hits and two walks, while striking out six. Defensively, Katie May Holloway made a nice grab of a line drive to snuff out a potential Wakefield rally.

Home run ousts All-Stars

with his speed. Following suit, Dave Velardo also executed a bunt in which the North Reading pitcher slipped and threw the ball away allowing Layton to advance to third. Two pitches later, Velardo stole second and later Sinopoli walked to load the bases. A single up the middle by Osgood brought home the tying run in Layton to keep Wilmington alive. But, with the bases loaded, Wilmington could not do further damage.

Wilmington was able to scrape together a run in the seventh inning to take the lead at 4-3. Taking advantage of North Reading miscues, Wilmington manufactured a big run. James O'Neil started things off with a double to left center. A wild pitch sent O'Neil to third and he came home on a throwing error as Wilmington now needed just three outs to continue its tournament run.

North Reading was not about to let Wilmington off the hook so easily in the bottom of the seventh. With one out, Cody's home run to straight away center brought North Reading back to knot the score at four apiece.

North Reading not only continued the momentum, but they continued the homerun ball as Lewis knocked one out in the eighth as told to win the game outright for North Reading.

Summer playground lots of fun

WILMINGTON - The summer has officially arrived! That means school's out and playground is in. This year, the Recreation Department has added another site to its expanding Summer Playground Program. Along with the original Glen Road Town Hall playground, another site has been added at the Woburn Street School. Both playgrounds will offer similar activities and field trips and will often coincide for some events. Field trips for both playgrounds include Water Country, Canobie Lake, Funland, Chuck E. Cheese, the movies, bowling and four beach days.

Arts and crafts day will be held every Monday. Many exciting events have been planned, such as sports competitions, Olympics between the two playgrounds, talent show, Halloween Day. There is always something for everyone to do. Both playgrounds will follow the same policies, rules and guidelines.

The open playground policy is enforced at both playgrounds as well. A schedule of events is planned, but alternate activities are offered daily. Prices are the same for both locations; $45 for the first child, $25 for the second, three or more, free. Playground will not be held on rainy days. The only major difference between the two playgrounds is that ratios of playgrounders to leaders are lower at the Woburn Street, allowing room for more structured activities. Space is currently available in each program.

This year, the program exhibits many people of a wide range of abilities, experiences, and interests. All of the leaders have participated in programs through the Recreation Department before. Experience ranges from a first year worker, all the way to a 12 year veteran!

Ellen Grinder, supervisor of the Woburn Street School Summer Playground Program, is the lone veteran of 12 years. Currently she works as the assistant director of the Harrington extended Day Program in Lexington. Ellen is a certified elementary education teacher, with a Masters in Education in Curriculum and Instruction. Ellen also teaches dance at the Donna Miceli Dance Center.

Dorothy McCarthy, a five year veteran, is the supervisor for the Glen Road Playground. She is a certified elementary education teacher with a Masters in Special Needs. During the school year, Dorothy works as a first and second grade special education teacher in Tyngsboro.

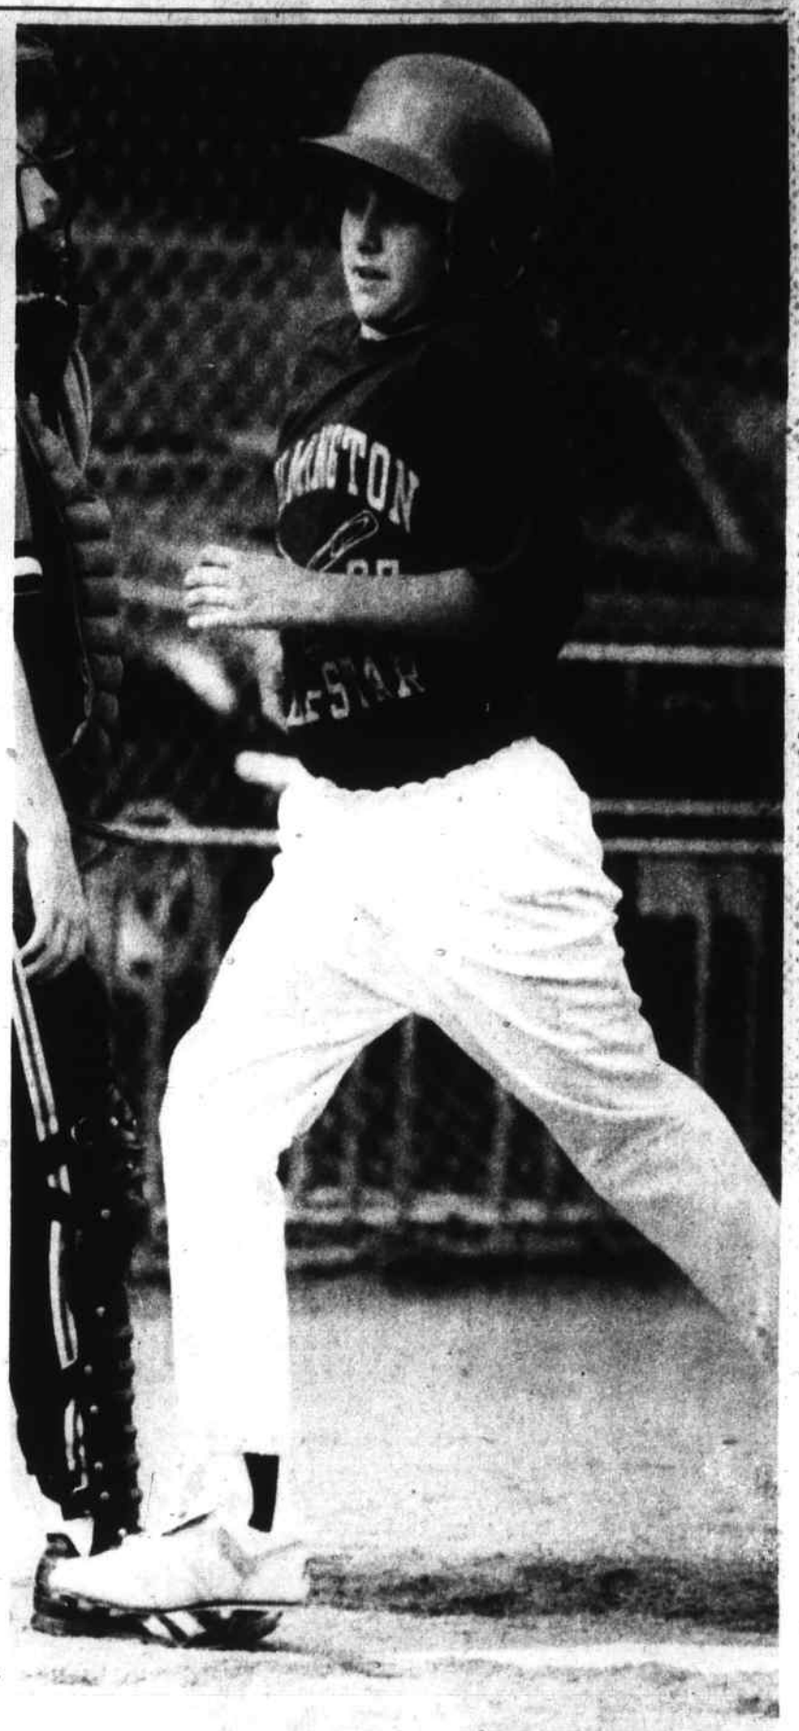
The Playground Program has four three year veterans: Matt Calandrello, Amy Hermann, Mike LaCorcia, and Kerri Casella. All graduated from Wilmington High School in 1995. Since high school, Matt has taken an EMT course and participated in various hockey leagues. He plans to attend MacIntosh College in Dover, N.H. this fall to major in computer applications. Amy Hermann is a junior at Bryant College in RI where she is a computer information systems major. Amy made the dean's list at Bryant this past semester.

Mike LaCorcia is a junior at the University of New Hampshire. He plans to obtain a degree in recreation management and policy. While at college, Mike plays intramural soccer and basketball. Kerri Casella is a junior at Plymouth state College in N.H. where she will major in childhood studies, teacher certification I-8 and minor in health. At Plymouth, Kerri is an orientation leader, Sara Boudrea representative, and s catching. Student Alumni Asso

Kristen Bruno has been a volunteer for the past four years. Currently, she is a senior at WHS and involved in colorguard, track, Student Council, Peer Leadership, secretary for SWAT, and treasurer of chorus.

Cheryl Lecesse has also volunteered for three years. She will be a senior at WHS this fall and participates in band, track, Peer Leadership, SADD, newspaper and National Honor Society.

Leanne Harris is a sophomore at Salem State College where she has a major of sports, fitness, and leisure with a concentration in physical education. She plays field hockey and softball and was recently named to the All New England team for softball. Both programs currently have space available and are always open to new faces. Volunteer helpers are also always welcome. All the leaders look forward to providing activities for the children of Wilmington, those interested, sign them up today!



Girls Major Softball team reaches championship game

The Wilmington Major League All-Star softball team has reeled off several big victories in a row including Tuesday's 18-17 thrilling win. With the win over Woburn, Wilmington will now play for the championship on Wednesday night at Rotary Park. A Loving Friend
God looked around the garden, and found an empty space.
He looked down upon the earth,
and saw your tired face.
He put his arms around you,
and lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful
for He only takes the best.
He knew that you were weary,
and he knew that you were in pain.
He knew that you would never,
be well on earth again.
He saw the roads were getting rough,
and the hills were hard to climb.
So He closed your weary eyelids,
and whispered peace be thine.
And sent his angles,
to take you to glory divine.
Gone, but not forgotten...

Greater Outdoors

New England is a busy place for outdoor activities

by Ed Larkin

Our country offers the best of everything when it comes to different ecosystems. These ecosystems include our oceans and our mountain ranges; each of these areas are filled with beauty, life, and adventure. I find it hard to leave the New England area, just because we have so much to do around here four seasons of the year.

But this slow starting summer and a desire to swim in natural warm water convinced me to head south. I packed all of my favorite gear, including way cool shades, sun screen, and a major credit card. By midday not too long ago, my wife and I were cruising down the Florida Turnpike on our way to Key Largo.

Just about an hour from Miami, Key Largo is the beginning of a chain of coral islands immersed in blue green water and sunshine splendor. Key Largo is home to John Pennekamp Coral Reef State Park. Pennekamp Park is located bedside the federally protected Key Largo National Marine Sanctuary.

The Pennekamp Coral Reef State Park was established in 1960 as the first American underwater sanctuary. Named for the late Miami Herald newspaper editor who championed its preservation. In 1990, the federal government extended the range of the sanctuary to ensure protection to the only living coral reef in the continental United States. The two sanctuaries provide 103 square miles of protected beauty for all to enjoy.

Some of the best diving and snorkeling in the world is in this area. The coral reefs team with thousands of species of aquatic life. I was able to plan a trip with a dive/snorkeling company that took only six people per trip. They also stayed out of the mainstream hot stops and brought us out to the less disturbed reef locations.

The trip to our diving spot was a pleasure to the eyes. In order to get out to the east coast of Key Largo, we had to travel through a narrow channel filled with bleached cut coral and lush Mangrove trees. Mangroves act as a natural filter system for the water.

From the boat I noticed several different types of birds nesting and feeding in and along the Mangroves. The boat captain informed me that porpoises and various species of channel fish can be seen traveling in this water way when there is less boat traffic.

As we entered the open ocean, Pelicans were dive bombing on the local bait fish in endless dance of diving and eating. Even as we traveled at 11 knot you could see the sandy, blonde bottom foundation connected to the masses of coral structure.

We arrived over a two mile length of coral reef in 20 feet of water. My diving partners were a couple that lived in West Palm Beach most of their adult lives and this was their first trip to the Keys. We took the plunge and slowly paddled against the slow current enjoying the rainbow of colors.

Once we reached a comfortable cruising depth, we were covered in marine life. Think of a trip to the New England Aquarium, but instead of you viewing the fish, the fish view you. Among the corral reefs I spied Jacks, Parrot Fish, Spiny Lobsters, Grouper, Angel Fish, and lurking in the fringe, the Great Barracuda.

This laundry list of life is just the tip of the coral reef. In the divers narrow field of view it is impossible to comprehend the vast amount of life swirling around you at any given time. Each trip to the reef is a completely new experience. The protection of this resource guarantees it will be here for future generations.

Every dive trip I have ever made enlightens me to something new. At the end of the day, the boat captain asked if we would like to snorkel a shallow reef area with some interesting brain coral structure. Everyone was game, and we all jumped for the last dive of the day.

My wife and I were paddling 100 yards off the stern of the boat when I noticed a large Barracuda following us and one other diver. He was approximately three feet in length and as thick as a fire hose. It was not unusual for a Barracuda to be curious and glaring at divers. What was unusual was as he swam he followed us.

As I watched him follow us around the reef I noticed he had a fishing lure stuck to his jaw. Someone had either caught and released him or lost him in battle. I was wondering if he might still hold a grudge from his previous encounter with man. Whatever the case, I felt we should make our way back to the boat.

After my wife climbed aboard, I placed my face in the water before I got out and peering at me with a toothsome grin, not more than two feet away, was my new best friend.I climbed aboard happy for this strange encounter, but glad we left without really meeting.

It is the natural beauty and the fresh new experience that draws me to the Keys. At this time of year, it is inexpensive to travel to Florida. A four day trip for two, including lodging, car rental, and modest meals runs about $700. Unlike the other areas of Florida, the Keys are save with common sense safety practices.

Diving is just one of the many activities in the Keys. Pretty much anything you like to do can be done there. People are warm and friendly. Everything is very laid back and people expect you to relax. The Keys are another of America's treasures. Just the drive into the Keys is worth the trip. Find the time to explore these gems of coral and sea.

It was also an opportunity for both the Woburn Street and the Glen Road Playgrounds to combine for their first event together.

On Friday, a quiet games challenge was scheduled. Playgrounders could choose between checkers, stratego, clue, or connect four. They signed up for one game and challenged a leader. Winners will be announced next week.

10 yr old nationals club Hillies

The 10-year-old Tewksbury National baseball team began its first week of play in the Chelmsford Tournament with a perfect 2-0 record.

On Tuesday (7/8) Tewksbury-N won its first game of the tournament 21-9 against Haverhill. Their strong offense continued on Thursday with an impressive 16-1 win against Westford. Both games combined great offensive and defensive plays by every member of the team.

Tewksbury, 21
Haverhill, 9

Tied 7-7 at the end of two innings, Tewksbury (N-10-year old) broke it open in the top half of the third as Doug Heald (four for six) singled with bases loaded to start a four run rally.

Tewksbury never looked back as the combined pitching of Heald and Tom Dittilo stopped any serious Haverhill threats. Tewksbury added to its lead in the top half of innings with five and six some fine efforts by Brian Macy (two for two with two walks), Kevin Ianetta (one for two with four walks), Jerry Boyle (three for five), and Patrick Cullity (one for two). Mark Davis excited the crowd in the first inning with a fine running catch in left field.

Tewksbury, 16
Westford, 1

Kevin Ianetta tossed a two hit gem, striking out six and walking only one as Tewksbury (N-10 year old) notched its second consecutive win in the Chelmsford Tournament. Things rally got cooking for Tewksbury when Peter Fortunato (one for two) singled to Kevin Igo (two for two) and Mike Reed (two for three) with bases loaded in the last half of the second to spark a five run rally.

The game was shortened by the mercy rule as Tewksbury added 10 runs in the bottom half of the fourth with great contributions from Doug Heald (double), Kevin Ianetta (two for three), Mark Davis (one for three), and Brian Macy (three for four). Fine defensive plays were turned in by Ryan Walsh at first base and Steven Pitts at center field.

Five year old twin brothers, Ian and Eric Drosso, tied for first place in the five year old boys race in the Tewksbury Summer Track program held at TMHS last Thursday night. (Photo by Peter August).

Sailing INTO History

By PAUL FEELY

Her mighty masts have been bare for 116 years, rising high above the Charlestown skyline as a reminder of the war she waged to help keep this country free. Generations of visitors to her museum have crossed her deck and gazed upward, wondering what it must have been like to cross the sea as a member of her crew, and what her majestic sails looked like.

Wonder no more.

On Monday, July 21, U.S.S. Constitution will sail (barring bad weather) under her own power for the first time in 116 years, in honor of the 199th anniversary of her maiden voyage on July 22, 1798 from Boston and the 200th anniversary of her launching on October 21, 1797 in Boston Harbor. On Tuesday, July 8, the ship's crew members performed a trial run with family, friends, and media members aboard, and though a connecting cable remained in place between a tug and the legendary ship throughout the trip (it went slack once the sails were unfurled), the main question was answered - the old girl can still sail.

Reading native Chief Dan Nicholson (a 1982 graduate of Reading Memorial High School) served as the navigator for that trial run (a job he will repeat for the historic sail), and will take over as Command Chief during a Change of Command ceremony scheduled to be held on board the ship July 26. The three year tour of duty is a dream come true for Nicholson, not only because he will be stationed closer to home, but for the chance to crew the historic ship and take part in what could be an active future for the vessel.

"We will sail it this year," said Nicholson. "After that, we're looking at bigger and better things.

USS Constitution to S-4

Woburn's Don Hart

You've got to have Hart

by: JIM GOLDSMITH

You've Gotta Have Hart As A Friend/Volunteer

One of Massachusetts' top 10 volunteers to the elderly has a great attitude and philosophy on helping others. Donald J. Hart of Woburn says, "I don't think what I do is exceptional. This volunteer program (at Minuteman Home Care, Inc., Burlington) has given me the opportunity to help people the way we (his brothers and Don) were helped."

Maybe he doesn't think his volunteer work is exceptional, but his peers and the judges who selected this wonderful man as one of the state's 10 best volunteers certainly do. This spring the trim 69 year old money management volunteer was invited to the State House's Great Hall by some well known poles including William F. Weld, Gov.; Argeo Paul Cellucci, Lt. Gov.; and Franklin P Olliverre, Secretary of Elder Affairs. Before Don Hart could ask, why me he thought he saw Della Reese in the sea of faces and was suddenly Touched By An Angel-a white dove. It flew up to Don's shoulder and you could have knocked the flabbergasted gentleman over with a feather.

D.O.V.E. is an acronym for Devoted Outstanding Volunteer To Elders, and this is the fifth year the Silver Dove Awards have been presented.

The award states, in part, "The annual Silver Dove Awards were created in 1992 to celebrate 10 annual volunteers who performed 'above and beyond the call of duty.' Each volunteer has enhanced the quality of life for elders, and that spirit of benevolence has touched every citizen in Massachusetts."

As in so many things in life this was a case where "Many are called but few are chosen." In fact the judges had the unenviable task of narrowing down the field of entrants from 100 to 10. Don Hart was nominated by Cathy Papazian, Money Management Program Director at Minuteman Home Care, Inc., 24 Third Street, Burlington. What does the winner think of his award? The reserved white haired man who was a consultant in the construction industry and a manager of trade associations says, "It was a pleasant shock. I never considered myself as having accomplished that much (so much as) having been rewarded-they told me I take on the tough cases."

Ms. Papazian, who nominated Don for this award, says of her star volunteer, "Don is tops in the Minuteman Money Management Assistance Program in Massachusetts. He has been in the program for a number of years, and has taken on difficult cases and goes far beyond what is expected. He finds a way (to effectively deal with) people who haven't had a lot of close friendships and gains their trust. He's just so good hearted he sees what they need.

"If something's troubling them, if he doesn't have an answer, he finds other people (resources/agencies) that can help. He has a good sense of humor.

"Did he tell you about the time he was on vacation in California? An elderly person's bank account had lapsed and been closed. He recovered more than $800 interest on a $43 account. Don's always willing to give even the worst, hardest, cases a try."

Don Hart and the other 59 volunteers in the Minuteman Program are trained to go into the homes and apartments of elderly clients who need assistance handling their finances. If it weren't for these unsung heroes there would be many elderly folks losing telephone service, oil and gas heat and even their homes if bills aren't paid on time. Cathy says, "Don (and all Minuteman's volunteers) are peacemakers in a tricky balancing act with people who don't have much money."

And what does this angel think about his "Tricky balancing act?" He says "I always felt I owed something (to society) because we (he and his four brothers) were given so much in our early life (in Philadelphia, PA). This volunteer program has given me the opportunity to help people the way we were helped (by nuns at a private Catholic academy). I consider this opportunity (to help others) a reward to me too."

The man who thinks Abe Lincoln was a great man and president, has been a friend to lonely folks who sometimes just need a friend. A chronic alcoholic who cannot pay his bills. A lady, now deceased, who suffered from mental illness and regularly 'fired' Don but who was always glad to see him come back.

And a legally blind lady who when asked by Ms. Papazian What do you think of Don Hart said "I love him. It's just like Christmas every time he comes here."

This compassionate man with a wife, Ann Farrey-Hart, six children and 13 grandchildren ranging in age from six to 25, has a wonderful outlook on life. You can almost hear the dove's wings whoosh when he says, "You get so attached to these people that when they die it's like losing a family member. That's the only drawback, but I don't think it's too big a drawback."

About The Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

Beyond Arthur C. Clarke

Local millennium party well ahead of schedule

"Alan Foulds, Town Moderator, and his wife Anna Foulds, key organizers of Reading's 350th anniversary celebration, proposed to the Board of Selectmena millennium celebration to mark the arrival of the year 2000," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

Said 26-hour party to be held on December 31, 1999.

Wait ... stop ... may we be the first to propose a second annual millennium party to mark the arrival of the year 2001, which is actually the beginning of the next century.

"In his presentation to the board," continues the Reading "Chronicle," "he noted that this party would be a continuation of a town tradition, going back 100 years."

To 1899.

"At the end of the last century a huge celebratory party was held on the common, and residents jointly counted down to the midnight chimes of the Old South Church.

"The selectmen will be appointing a committee to formulate the plans ...."

Y2K: okay?

"'It's staggering to start doing mind games on what percentage of companies will go out of business (when 00 hits the worldwide computer scene),' notes "The Day the World Shuts Down," part of a recent "Newsweek" cover story.

"'What is the impact of 1 percent going out of business?' Or maybe more: Y2K expert Capers Jones predicts that more than 5 percent of all businesses will go bust. This would throw hundreds of thousands of people into the unemployment lines applying for checks that may or may not come, depending on whether the government has successfully solved its Y2K problem."

Capers Jones - an internationally recognized leader in the field of software measurement and estimation - is the founder of Burlington's Software Productivity Research, "a worldwide provider of software tools and consulting services ...."

"Whether you should unplug your computer in case your electric power goes haywire is less easy to predict," notes "Will My Home PC Die?" in "Newsweek."

"In general, it pays to take a few low-tech precautionary measures against year 2000 snafus. Keep backup records (both on floppies and on paper) of bank balances, credit-card statements and utility bills. That's what year 2000 expert Capers Jones is doing. He also plans to enter the next millennium with a full tank of gas in his car (automated gas pumps might spit back his credit card, he worries) and plenty of traveler's checks in his pocket. Just in case."

"Are there any credible sources of year 2000 costs?" asks "Numbers Add Up to a Bigger Year 2000 Disaster" in "Computerworld."

"So far, I have found only one: Capers Jones, the president of Software Productivity Research, a consultancy in Burlington, Mass ...."

ANTHONY MANCONI

In a wonderful musical play, "Finnian's Rainbow" a beautiful song was sung. It started with, "How are things in Glocca-morra? Is that little brook still flowing there? Does it run through Donegal, Kilkenny and Kildare?"

Folks, many times a person goes back to the place where he or she was born and grew up and comes back home disappointed. Some people hoped to find what was left behind years ago -Their Youth! Bob Thaves, author of Frank and Earnest, said it more eloquently. "There is No U turn on the highway of Life."

Success is relative - the More success the More relatives.

Blackie Vega told me that when he shook hands with Cardinal Law, Blackie's whole right side went sober.

Officer Gerry Gately stopped a beautiful young woman for speeding. He was looking over her license when she looked up at him with her dreamboat eyes and said, "Officer, I want you to know that I have 'Contacts!' " Officer Gately snapped back with, "young lady, I don't care who you know, your license shows you wearing glasses!"

I remember when my brothers and sisters and I would sing a song for my mother on Mother's Day. "Pal of my cradle days, I've needed you always. Since I was a baby upon your knee, you sacrificed everything for me. I stole the gold from your hair. I put the silver-threads there. I don't know anyway, I could ever repay. Pal of my cradle days."

She had the beautiful voice of a Jeannette McDonald and the tender loving care of an Irene Dunne of "I Remember Mama Fame." She shared her love equally with those of us who excelled scholastically or were gifted musically. She comforted me many times knowing that I wasn't one of those.

I thank god for the Gift of writing poetry and Woodchips and I thank a beautiful Irish lady from Winchester who encouraged me to keep on writing.

Stay away from the dancing halls, the people there are no-good at all. That's were I met your father Bridget Darling.

That was a popular song years ago meant to be funny, but of course wasn't true. The finest people I know are 'now' or 'were' Ballroom Dancers and those who read Woodchips.

USS Constitution

From S-1

We just want to sail it and see what happens from there."

For those unfamiliar with the history of Constitution, she is made of timbers felled from Maine to Georgia and has cannons cast in Rhode Island and copper fastenings provided by Paul Revere. She has remained a part of the U.S. Navy since she first put to sea, and is the oldest commissioned warship afloat in the world.

Her first mission, during the late 1790's, was to guard commerce in the Caribbean against French depredations. After that she protected American ships from Barbary pirates, and bombarded Tripoli until a treaty was signed with that country in 1805.

After being named flagship of the North Atlantic Squadron, she defeated HMS Guerriere, just the first in a long line of victories in the War of 1812. During this time crew members marveled at how British cannonballs were bouncing off her sides, earning her the nickname "Ironsides".

Her war service ended in 1815, when she was laid up for almost six years to undergo extensive repairs, after which she went on two cruises to the Mediterranean. In 1830 she was deemed unseaworthy and condemned to be broken up, but a poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes called "Old Ironsides" stirred such a popular feeling about the ship that money was appropriated to rebuild her in 1833. She eventually became the first American warship to circumnavigate the globe in 1844, and served as a training ship for Naval Academy midshipmen during the Civil War.

In 1882 she was removed from active service and retired to the Portsmouth, New Hampshire Naval Shipyard. In recognition of her centennial, Constitution was brought back to Boston in 1897, refitted for display, and opened to the public as a national monument in 1905. She was recommissioned in 1931 for a coast-to-coast tour of American cities that lasted until 1934, when she returned to the Charlestown Navy Yard where she rests today.

The funding for the sails which now grace the ship came from the "Sail Old Ironsides" Pennies Campaign, a nationwide fundraising drive involving school children, which is modeled after a two-year effort started in 1925 to raise funds for a $980,000 restoration. The goal is to raise $500,000, which would cover not only the cost of the six new sails and related equipment, but also for any additional and/or replacement sails and material. So far, approximately $150,000 has been raised.

The sails themselves could quite possibly overshadow the trip itself. The ship will have six operational sails in place on July 21: the flying jib, jib, fore topsail, main topsail, mizzen topsail, and spanker, which combine for 12,225 square feet of sail. They are made of OCEANUS, a synthetic closely resembling natural canvas (the original sails were made of flax, a linen-like material).

The main top sail is Constitution's largest sail. It is 56 feet wide at the top, 50 feet high at the sides, and 74 feet wide at the bottom (approximately the size of a basketball court. Approximately eight miles of running rigging has been installed, which is used to handle the sails, while 27 miles of standing rigging supports the masts. Exactly 229 pulleys have also been installed for the trip.

Aside from the sails, the ship itself also looks as if she were just christened. She underwent a $12 million, US Navy funded restoration and rehabilitation from July 1992 through March 1996. She has now been restored to exactly the way she looked in 1812, and is currently presenting the most historically accurate configuration visitors have witnessed this century.

Last Tuesday's test run was called "sail training under tow", and involved taking Constitution out about 15 miles from her home (the farthest she has been since 1934) and allowing the crew to practice raising the sails.

"We're all hoping to catch some wind out there," said Nicholson just before the ship headed out of Boston Harbor.

As the first sail was unfurled a hush drew over those assembled on the top deck, who then erupted in cheers at the sight of it filling with wind. After all six sails were opened a wind speed of between 5-7 knots was recorded, and the connecting line with the tug went slack. Constitution was traveling at a top speed of about four knots, moving under her own power for the first time in 116 years.

The sails were then brought in while the ship repositioned itself, and a sense of anticipation filled the ship as the wind picked up. The sails once again filled with wind, and the record will show that 20th century instruments recorded that at 1:50 pm the 200-year-old vessel recorded a top speed of 6.5 knots, earning itself another place in naval record books.

In all, Constitution traveled 34 miles that day (17 each way) over eight and a half hours, and four miles under sail.

"Not bad for a 200-year-old ship," said Captain Michael Beck.

In preparation for the big day next Monday, Constitution will be towed to Marblehead on July 20, where the crew will stay overnight. Then on Monday it will head for a position about 3.5 miles northeast of Graves Lighthouse, where the sails will be set at noon and she will head north for approximately five miles, while escorted by destroyer USS Ramage and frigate USS Hallyburton. The Blue Angels Flight Team will also conduct flyovers. It is expected to be under sail for approximately one hour.

Each member of her crew realizes that they will be sailing into history that day, an honor they don't take lightly.

"This crew is the best of the best," said Nicholson. "They are hand-picked from around the country. This is what we signed up for in the first place."

USA Hockey, the National Governing Body for the sport of hockey in the United States, has announced a list of 16 players who will take part in the USA Hockey National Team Development Program, based in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Winchester's Pat Aufiero is among those players.

"I am very pleased with the character and caliber of these young men," said USA Hockey National Coach Jeff Jackson. "We have an excellent group of players thanks to hard work in the scouting phase."

Aufiero is a 6'1", 165 lb defenseman who shoots right-handed. He participated in the 1996 USA Hockey Select 16 Festival, and was the captain of the 1996-97 Winchester High School squad as a sophomore.

"Pat is a highly skilled defenseman with good size and speed," said USA Hockey assistant coach Bob Mancini. "He has the ability to control the puck and can play at both ends of the ice."

The National Team Development Program was designed by USA Hockey to select and train two national teams consisting of 44 world-class US ice hockey players under the age of 18. Beginning in September, 1997, the two teams each will play a schedule of more than 60 games against teams from the United States Hockey League, North American Hockey League, and Ontario Hockey League. The two teams will represent the US in the World Under 18 Championship and and the World Under 17 Hockey Challenge. American Players who do not participate on the two standing teams are still eligible to represent the US in other international tournaments.

The final player selections for the program will be based on evaluations at the USA Hockey select 16 festival and the USA Hockey Select 17 Festival, and are expected to be announced no later than August 1.

PRIME TIME FOR BOAT BURGLARS

The boating season is underway and boat thieves are on the move, too, according to BOAT?U.S. (Boat Owners Association of The United States), the nation's largest organization of recreational boaters.

Thieves steal an average of 1,000 boats a month at an annual cost to boaters and their insurance companies of $40 million. More than half of all stolen boats are motorboats in the 18-to-23-foot range. The odds of recovering a stolen vessel are only one is ten, the Association said.

Equipment left unsecured on board is also popular with thieves. Electronics such as GPS receivers and LORAN, fishfinders, VHF radios, stereo systems and inflatable dinghies are prime targets.

Some tips from BOAT/U.S. to help protect your boat from thieves:

Don't make your boat an easy target. Use theft-warning decal's, locks and alarm systems. Anti-theft devices aren't fool-proof, but they can make a boat burglary difficult enough to discourage many crooks.

Remove valuable items, such as electronics, especially if you plan to be away from your boat for a long time.

If you leave your boat on a trailer, use a wheel or trailer hitch lock, or remove one or more of the wheels.

Keep receipts for major equipment purchases and copies of boat ownership documents as well as photos of your boat and its equipment, on shore in a secure place.

If your boat or any of its equipment stolen or vandalized, reporting the incident quickly to the local police and your insurance company may improve the odds of recovery.

Biplanes at Hanscom Field

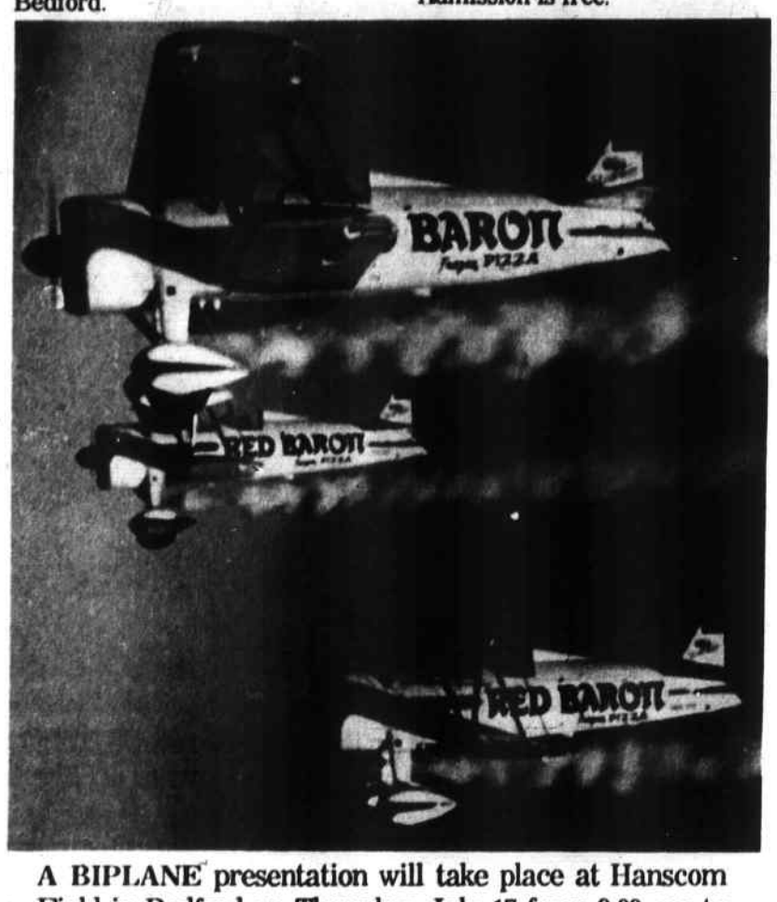
Red Baron Frozen Pizza proudly presents a special appearance of the Red Baron Biplanes. Flying enthusiasts and the community are invited to come see the two biplanes on display, Thursday, July 17 from 9am -5:15pm, at the Jet Aviation of America FBO (Hanger) at Hanscomb Field, located on Hanscomb Drive in Bedford.

The red and white, smoke trailing, super Stearman are original open-air cockpit biplanes reminiscent of aviation's earlier days. The tour, sponsored by Red Baron Frozen Pizza, is in an effort to keep the lost art of Barnstorming alive.

The Red Baron Stearman Squadron appearance in the Boston/Bedford area will benefit Muscular Dystrophy. In support of Muscular Dystrophy, Red Baron will donate a percentage from products sold in the community from July 6-July 19, to benefit its worthwhile cause and programs. With the help from the community, this event is sure to be a success.

Don't miss the legendary Red Baron Biplanes on Thursday, July 17 at Hanscomb Field in Bedford.

Come meet and visit with the pilots of the Red Baron Stearman Squadron, enjoy a sampling of free Red Baron Frozen Pizza, see biplanes on display near the hanger and watch as they take off from the ground. Admission is free.



A BIPLANE presentation will take place at Hanscom Field in Bedford on Thursday, July 17 from 9:00 am to 10:15 pm. Flights will leave on a regularly scheduled basis so the public can observe the "Red Baron's" as they were in World War I.

School Notes by Phyllis Nissen

Families First

Parenting beyond Burlington

"It is a genuine concern of society, with consequences that usually lead down a dark road," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"It is when parents do not have proper parenting skills.

"Fox Hill Principal Richard Benowitz understands how critical it is for parents to have these skills.... 'It gets parents ready for the challenging job of raising children,'" said Benowitz.

Benowitz recently hosted the third of three installments in the "Families First" lecture series. This latest edition was sponsored by the Burlington Rotary Club.

Benowitz told a recent meeting of the Rotary Club "he was at a conference last year, and a speaker from the district attorney's office 'made an impression' on him.

"The topic was parental skills," Benowitz said.

"Mothers were having children, 'and going home without parenting skills,' said Benowitz, who has been involved with the Burlington school system since 1975.

"The lecturer talked about social workers visiting homes and learning what parental traits these women did and did not possess," Benowitz said.

"Social workers would also identify what parental skills were needed," Benowitz said.

"'They could identify what support was needed,' said Benowitz. 'It was best to identify the parenting skills they needed now.'

'Educate folks early'

"'It's important to educate folks early and prevent something that might happen down the line,' said Benowitz (please see above). 'I thought about transferring those thoughts to Burlington.'

"It was then, Benowitz said, that he came up with the idea for the lecture series.

"Benowitz said he searched around and 'was impressed with a group called Families First,' which is associated with Wheelock College in Boston.

"'They (Families First) go into schools and hospitals and do programs for employees,' said Benowitz.

"The principal was pleased enough that he 'booked them for three parent lectures this year.'

"The Fox Hill School Council helped organize the lecture series, and the council 'has a lot of great ideas, but no money,' Benowitz said.

"The first lecture, which centered on self-esteem in children, was sponsored by the D.A.R.E. program, Benowitz said, and '65 people showed up.'

"The second lecture, Benowitz said, was on 'understanding children's behavior.'

"This lecture focused on 'staying a step ahead of kids' and understanding why they may be behaving a certain way, said Benowitz.

Thanks to Mass. Dept. of Public Health

"A grant from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health covered the cost of the second lecture, Benowitz said (please see above).

"'They (Families First) want to make people feel welcome,' said Benowitz. 'No question is too silly or too simple.'

"The topic of the third lecture was how to deal with children in a positive way, and dealing with children when your time is limited.

"'We have touched about 150 families (through the series),' said Benowitz. 'And they come away with helpful hints.'"

JUDITH O'HARE OF "YOU AND ME PUPPETS" will perform "Hansel & Gretel" in Reading on July 18 and 19.

J&D Dance Academy opens for classes this fall

Coming to Reading this fall, sisters Jodi Richardson and Deanna Carpinteri will be taking over the third floor of the Knights of Columbus building at 11 Sanborn Street, directly across from the post office.

They are pleased to offer a wide selection of Classes. In addition to, Ballet, Tap and Jazz, Hip-Hop and Cheerdance classes are planned as well. Call 942-5990 for schedule and brochure!

Since the age of five, Jodi has received technical training in Ballet, Tap and Jazz with an emphasis in the now popular style of dance called Hip-Hop from some of the finest instructors in the Boston area.

While in high school, to put her dancing skills to work, she became interested in Cheerleading. Senior year Jodi was named Captain of both Woburn's soccer and hockey squads, choreographing many of the cheers and dance routines for competitions.

She later became the coach of the Woburn Trojan "E" squad. From there Jodi auditioned and became a member of a semi-professional cheerleading team based in Manchester, NH, where again her choreographing skills were used.

Deanna has been dancing since the age of five, technically trained in all subjects at various studios throughout Boston and New York. She has performed amatuerally with many local dance companies, winning mumerous awards in competitions and pageants.

She began teaching dance at the age of sixteen, assisting her director in classes and eventually worked her way up to planning, teaching and choreographing for all ages and levels in all disciplines of dance. Realizing a true love for teaching dance, Deanna went on to further her knowledge of the art by enrolling in the Dance Teachers Club of Bostons' Teacher Training Course, a 3-year graded program designed to train dancers how to teach dance. She competed and graduated in 1994.

Aside from all of their other activities, Jodi and Deanna have been modeling since childhood and have most recently appeared in ads featured in some of today's most popular Bridal Magazines.

The late Sam Levenson was a great humorist. This friendly charitable man was asked, "Sam, what makes some people anti-semitic?" "I don't know," Sam replied. "It's a Free world, you don't have to like Jews, but, if you don't, you should be consistent and also hate their accomplishments. Like the Polio Vaccine, from Dr. Jona Salk and Dr. Albert Sabin, Streptomycin by Dr. Woronan, Vitamins by Dr. Funk etc." Sam continued, "if you want to Hate - hate, but Stay Healthy!"

I was told that a Camel is really a Horse put together by a Committee!

My cousin Angelo Quagenti served with the 121st Battalion of her Majesty's Fusileers. The men who served in it were nicked-named, "The paperhangers." On Border Patrols they would get Hung Up and come apart at the Seams. The Pattern was always the same, in every skirmish they would become Unglued and call for help.

Folks Kathy and I walk along Revere Beach almost every day. You will recognize us easily. Kathy is Bowlegged and I'm Knock-kneed so when we walk together we look like two quotation marks coming towards you.

My friend George Gould was testifying in court as an eye-witness. The judge asked him, "Did you Stop anytime when you were walking your dog Rover?" George smiled and replied, "Your Honor, apparently you never walked a dog.!"

Folks if you remember any of these, "Twenty-Two Skidoo," "Cute as a Button," "It's a Lead Pipe Cinch," "that's the kind of a Hairpin I am," "She was as Pure as the Driven Snow-BUT-Oh how she, Drifted," "Head for the Round-House Nellie he can't corner you there," then you must be as old as me.

My cousin Mario is married to a Gal named Kate-But- is still in love with Edith. His wife found out and exclaimed, "Mario!" you can't have your Kate and Edith too!"

Tommy Ciovacco, Jr. told me, "Chipper, any man who has not loved, Wine, Women and Song has been a Fool his whole life long."

My Aunt Nora told a store floorwalker, "Sir, I can't seem to find the Johnson Baby Powder." "Ma'am," he said, "It's three aisles over. Please walk this way." Well folks, the poor man was more than a little bowlegged, so my Aunt Nora exclaimed, "Mister, if I could walk that way, I wouldn't need the Baby Powder!"

Your home: Q & A

How can you build safely for children?

An important aim for every do-it-yourselfer is to avoid building anything that might be hazardous for children.

Here are some of the areas recognized as posing risks to children:

- A child's head can become entrapped in openings between slats, railings and other spaces that young children are likely to peek through. To avoid that hazard, keep those spaces to less than 31/2 inches wide.

- Small parts can be a choking hazard for children under age 3. Make sure that no toy or removable part of furniture (such as a knob) is less than 1) inches in size.

- Sharp corners and thin, sharp edges on drawers, coffee tables and other furniture can cause more than scratches and bruises. Remember that children are short - a hazard that might jab you in the thigh is at a child's head and eye level. Round all exposed corners and edges that children may encounter - or pad and tape them.

- Pinch and crush points can cause painful injuries. These are tricky to assess because adults don't have tiny fingers and wouldn't think of grabbing things the way children often do. To prevent finger pinching, enlarge any opening that might admit a three-sixteenths diameter rod so that it is enough for a one-half inch rod. Example of a pinch point to avoid: a wagon with wheels mounted close to the wagon bed, where tiny fingers could be caught when the rider grabs the side of the wagon.

- The leading causes of child injury from toy chests and boxes are falling lids, pinching hinges and entrapment leading to suffocation. Always equip a lid with a positive support mechanism - and never with an automatic locking device. Drill ventilation holes so that a trapped child can breathe. Make the gap between the front edges of the box and the lid at least one-half-inch wide, so small fingers can't be crushed by a closing lid.

- Children can pull a large piece of furniture over on top of themselves. A child, for example, may try to climb up the front of a dresser using the drawers as steps. Bolt large pieces such as dressers, chest of drawers and bunk beds to the baseboard or the studs in the wall.

- Unstable large toys are also dangerous. Keep the design of wagons, hobby horses and the like relatively wide and low, to reduce tipability. Test such toys on their "worst case" positions. You may decide to add stops to rockers, or outrigger supports at the side of a toy to eliminate instability.

- Children might strangle if a collar, drawstring or hood on their clothing becomes entangled. Make sure that cribs, bunk beds, railings, outdoor play equipment and similar items are free of projections that clothing might catch on. Also avoid dressing children in clothing that is oversized or has a drawstring.

- Because children place toys in their mouths, make sure the finish on a toy is nontoxic. On wooden toys, no finish is safest, followed by a coat of mineral oil, the grade sold in pharmacies is safe for human consumption. Raw (not boiled) linseed oil, fresh shellac and waxes containing either carnauba or beeswax are also considered safe. In nontoxic paints, the safest choices are those sold in arts and crafts stores. Look for the label of the Arts and Crafts Materials Institute or the words, "Conforms to ASTM D-4236" on the label.

Your Garden - Your Home

Add some spice to summer

Herbs are a great way to spice up your annual flower beds and at the same time add a little zing to your cooking this summer. They also can serve as a wonderful lesson for children who want to help in the garden.

Before you begin to plant, check out a book on Colonial herbs from the local library and teach your "students" about the Boston Tea Party while they're playing in the dirt. Take out a ruler and let them measure where to place the herbs in the garden. Finally, pick your rewards and cook a family meal together using basil and oregano.

Who says there's no school this summer?

HOW TO BEGIN

For herb transplants, Home Depot gardening expert Phillip Zealy recommends you dig a hole two times the size of the root ball for each plant. If the soil is compact, add Nature's Helper to loosen the dirt and improve drainage. Explain to the children how to gently squeeze the tray to remove the transplants and to carefully squeeze the roots to loosen them.

After they're planted, fertilize once with composited manure, explaining that organic matter is natural-it comes from plants and animals. Herbs won't need more than one fertilization in the summer because they are "light feeders" and require little maintenance.

Explain that plants need three important nutrients: nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium. Nitrogen is what makes the plant green and helps it grow. Phosphorus is for strong roots. Potassium works to resist disease and strengthen the plant.

It will be necessary to mulch, thin and weed from time to time.

"Show them how to deadhead the flowers, by removing the dead blossoms from the plant," says Zealy. "Tell them that it tricks the plants into producing more flowers."

He recommends the following herbs, adding that they require moist soil, high in organic matter, and partial shade in summer, full sun in fall and winter.

SPICY GLOBE BASIL is a cute green mounded basil with tiny leaves. It grows naturally into a mound and makes a great border plant. This popular annual should be pinched back. Used fresh or dried, it has a spicy, mild pepper flavor and works well with tomato sauce, fish, pasta, and rice. It also blends with zucchini, squash, potatoes and carrots.

CHIVES need a dormant period to send out leaves in the spring. It has a sweet, mild onion taste and blends well with onions, potatoes, artichokes, asparagus, cauliflower, corn, tomatoes, peas, carrots, spinach, poultry, fish, veal, creamy sauces, cheeses and eggs.

CORIANDER is a rapidly-growing annual with a strong sage and sharp citrus flavor. The leaves, also known as cilantro, have a sharp flavor and serve well with onions, sausage, clams, oysters and potatoes. The seeds can be added to dressings, cheese, chili sauce and is a great addition to guacamole and salsa.

DILL should be protected from wind because of its feathery foliage. It has beautiful clusters of yellow flowers and flavorful leaves and grows to about three feet in height. Its sharp, slightly bitter taste makes it an excellent addition to fish, pork, poultry and just about any vegetable.

OREGANO should be pinched back to promote bushy leaves. It has a hot peppery flavor and enhances cheese and egg dishes and blends well with marinated vegetables, roasted bell peppers, mushrooms, beef, poultry, black beans, zucchini and potatoes.

PARSLEY has been used by chefs for years to spice up foods and add green to platters, and can serve as an excellent boarder for your garden. Its unique flavor blends well with other foods, except sweets, and can be added at the last moment of cooking in sauces, grilled meats and poultry. It also is the prime ingredient of salsa verde.

PENNYROYAL MINT is a hardy and fast-growing perennial. It has a strong peppermint flavor and scent and can be used in moderation to flavor teas, jelly, desserts, ice cream, chocolate and cheese cake.

ROSEMARY is slow-growing but is very hardy and will come back year after year. It has a mint-like, sweet and slight ginger flavor and is great with just about anything . It also combines well with herbs like chives, thyme and parsley.

SAGE also is hardy and will return every year. Its fresh leaves are used in salads, omelets, soups and breads, rolls, sausages and poultry stuffings. It cooks well with most meats and vegetables.

THYME has a faint clover flavor and blends well with most meats and vegetables.

How to make the perfect burger

We each have our own idea of the perfect burger. But no matter how you top it-whether it's with mustard and tomatoes or basil pesto and roasted bell peppers-a perfect burger is also one that's handled and cooked properly.

"You can serve delicious and safe burgers by following just a few simple steps," says C.J. Valenziano, director of food safety and nutrition information for the National Cattlemen's Beef Association. "You don't have to sacrifice taste or time for safety."

Before You Fire Up. The first step in making a perfect burger starts at the supermarket. Choose packages that are cold, and well wrapped without tears or punctures. Check the "sell by" date.

To make juicy, moist burgers, shape the patties gently-too much handling can result in firm, compact burgers. If you're planning to use frozen ground beef, always defrost it in the refrigerator to prevent bacterial growth (It'll take about 24 hours to defrost a 1 to 1 1/2-inch thick package.)

It's also important to defrost home-made frozen patties before cooking. If you cook burgers that are frozen or partly defrosted, they may appear cooked on the outside but not be completely done on the inside.

After handling raw round beef (or any raw meat, poultry) wash your hands with hot soapy water. Remember to wash utensils and platters that come into contact with raw meat.

What's done is Medium Done. Some tips for cooking the perfect burger:

Grill 1/2" thick patties 11 to 13 minutes or until the centers and the juices are no longer pink. the U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends cooking burgers to medium doneness (160 degrees F on a quick-read thermometer). Use medium to medium-low-temperature coals. When ready, the coals will be covered in gray ashes.

When these sauces are mixed into raw ground beef, it can be more difficult to determine doneness.

Ten Myths Home Sellers Still Believe... That Are Costing Them Thousands.

With the real estate market recovering from the "crash" of the late 80's and early 90's, many homeowners are capitalizing on the equity in their home, and putting up the for sale sign. For most, the home purchase was the largest and most important transaction they made.

But, if you're selling for a profit, and most are, THIS is your biggest transaction!!! It needs to be handled with at least as much care if not more. With a rush to liquidate in a booming market, potential sellers continue to make costly mistakes, most of which can be avoided with little effort. Volumes of information are available to all, but most people don't have time to weed through the facts, figures and statistics.
